Love In Action

Valentine's Day is coming up soon, Wednesday, February 14th to be exact. Let this serve as a friendly reminder (especially to husbands) to remember this day because forgetting this day could cost you a lot more...I'm joking (I think...).

You are probably expecting some admonition about love or marriage. However, I came across this story recently that exemplifies love in action, something the world really needs right now, and something we as Christian should be quick to do. I am not promoting Chick-fil-A, I prefer Popeye's chicken sandwich. But the actions of one man and the example it was to a father and daughter who were watching, are exemplary.

"I took Stella to Chick-fil-A today. It's our normal daddy/daughter spot. It's clean, so good, and the playground has a tractor beam on her the moment she sees it. When we finished eating and she'd worked up her dessert appetite playing with the other kids, we went back to trade in her toy for ice cream. She wanted to sit at a table to eat the cone (something we usually do in the truck), and I'm so glad she did. We took a booth right next to the spot where you wait for your drink to be "refreshed," and we had a front row seat to this beautiful scene: a homeless traveler had walked in and asked if they had any extra food. Mud was wet and caked on his well-traveled shoes. His hair was matted, and his beard wasn't a statement as much as it was a necessity and a sign that he doesn't get to shave as often as most of us do. People near him kept their distance, but that didn't stop him from being kind. He spoke to people who reluctantly spoke back, and he smiled while he waited on a manager. All I could pick up on of the conversation was the manager saying that he'd love to give him a full, warm meal--not just scraps or extras--, and the only thing he required was that the man let him pray with him. After the homeless man agreed, there was no waiting for things to die down, there was no scooting anyone to the side. As busy as they were, the manager stopped then and there, laid his hand on the man, and proceeded to pray. I heard love in that prayer. The homeless man wasn't some untouchable stain on business. He was the reason that store opened its doors this morning (or any morning). I asked Stella to watch, and she stared. She asked what was happening and when I told her, she bowed her head, too. I love teaching my daughter life lessons, and I also love being there to watch other Christians teach her life lessons. Thank you, Chick-fil-A, for taking care of the latter today." (Story provide by JoeynKaren Mustain).

As Christians, the love of Christ, the first "fruit" listed in the fruit of the Spirit, should exude from our lives into the lives of our family, friends, and associates. But even more, it ought to spill out of our lives into the lives those who most need it. And if you are paying attention, so many people around us need to experience the love of the Lord Jesus Christ; and they can....through you!

What is Bibliology?

Bibliology is the study of the Bible. The Bible is the inspired Word of God, and it is the source of knowledge about God, Jesus Christ, salvation, and eternity. Bibliology tells us what the Bible is. Common questions in Bibliology are:

Is the Bible truly God's Word? Our answer to this question will determine how we view the Bible and its importance to our lives. It will also have an eternal impact on us.

What is the canon of Scripture? Christianity is rooted in the authority of Scripture. If we can't identify what is Scripture, then we can't distinguish theological truth from error.

What does it mean that the Bible is inspired? The Bible itself claims that every word, in every part of the Bible, is inspired by God.

Does the Bible contain errors, contradictions, or discrepancies? If you read the Bible, at face value, you will find it to be a coherent, consistent, and relatively easy-to-understand book.

Is there proof for the inspiration of the Bible? The proof of the Bible's inspiration include fulfilled prophecy, the unity of Scripture, and the support of archeological findings. Its most important proof, however, is in the lives of those who read it, believe it, and live according to its precepts.

Bibliology teaches us that the Bible is inspired, meaning it is "breathed out" by God. The Bible does not contain any errors, contradictions, or discrepancies. Bibliology helps us to understand how God used different human authors of Scripture and still produced His Word and exactly what He wanted to say. For Christians, the Bible is life itself. It is filled with the very Spirit of God, revealing His heart and mind to us. What a wonderful and gracious God we have! He could have left us to struggle through life with no help at all, but He gave His Word to guide us, truly a "lamp to my feet and a light to my path" (Psalm 119:105). - Pastor James
